

Przemysław Kulik

Social responsibility and sustainable development manager with experience in corporations, start-ups and NGOs. He successfully managed projects and teams in building and developing socially engaged ventures. In the period 2006-2016, he worked in marketing and corporate communication of the PZU Group, in recent years as the CSR Coordinator, also managing the PZU health programs support team. Then he was responsible for the strategy and development of the St. Christopher Oncological Hospice Foundation, and later the oncological foundation "Find Help" (formerly United Way Polska), as well as for building the social entrepreneurship of both foundations.

He is a graduate of social policy at the University of Warsaw, political sociology at Dalarna University in Sweden, doctoral studies in economics at the Warsaw School of Economics (SGH), and postgraduate studies in corporate social responsibility at Kozminski University (KU) and project management at the Warsaw School of Economics.

At BGK (Polish development bank) he is the Director of the CSR and Sustainable Development Reporting Office and Social Officer in the ESG Committee of BGK. He is also an academic lecturer at KU, CUE and SGH in the field of ESG, integrated reporting and corporate social responsibility.

Privately, he is the father of 3-year-old Milenka, an avid geopolitics and financial markets enthusiast.
